Once upon a time, there was a Grasshopper who loved to play his fiddle and dance in the summer. Meanwhile, the Ants were busy collecting grain from all over during the summer months.

The Grasshopper would often laugh at the Ants and tease them saying,

“Why are you wasting sunshine by working? Come, dance with me!”

The Ants ignored his teasing and continued to work during the bright sunny days.

One day in the late autumn, the Ants were bustling about in the warm sunshine drying out the grain they had stored up during the summer.

The starving Grasshopper, with his fiddle under his arm, came up to them and humbly begged for a bite to eat.

"What!" cried the Ants in surprise, "haven't you stored anything away for the winter? What in the world were you doing all summer?"

"I didn't have time to store up any food," whined the Grasshopper; "I was so busy making music that before I knew it, the summer was gone."

The Ants shrugged their shoulders in disgust.

"Making music, were you?" they cried. "Very well; now enjoy your music and dance!" And they turned their backs on the Grasshopper and went on with their work.
